COUNTRY: Argentina | REGION: Mendoza

VIEJA BARRICA

Around 2000 years ago, while expanding their territory, the Romans realized that oak barrels were the best tool for transporting wine. Later they were astonished to discover that, when in contact with the wood, the wine became smoother, and that it gave off aromas of vanilla, cinnamon and cloves. Faced with such an unexpected revelation, the Romans felt that the wood was whispering secret words to them, from deep within. Today, our barrels sigh the same words to us, and bring to our wines the same magic of yesteryear, immutable.
